

Enterprise Performance Management (EPM)

Just as a pilot requires total visibility, instant access to complete data, and early warning of potential problems to maintain the correct flight plan and avert a crisis, manufacturers must be able to see and evaluate in real-time the performance situation in all business operations. In fact, the ability to have a window on what is happening in every facet of operations—so that immediate mid-course corrections can be made based on up-to-the-second data—can be a major competitive advantage for manufacturers.

Discover total visibility. Make faster decisions.

Infor Enterprise Performance Management (EPM) solutions, part of our Discrete Manufacturing Essentials, provide the total visibility that managers require to make better, faster decisions and to turn before the dime even hits the ground. In effect, Infor EPM places you at every crucial point in the business operations, arming you with instantaneous critical data to initiate changes and improve performance. Infor EPM enables you to make these decisions much more rapidly and accurately than conventional methods.

By providing constantly updated information, Infor EPM solutions allow you to respond immediately to changing conditions on the plant floor, in the warehouse, at the loading dock and anywhere in the company. Your business runs leaner because you know precisely how well all operational areas of your business are performing, enabling real-time corrections to achieve performance goals. An executive dashboard provides data that allows quick and easy evaluation of performance metrics, permitting managers to determine events and exceptions that should trigger alerts and methods to notify relevant staff members to take corrective action. With this instant feedback on changing conditions in production, delivery, inventory and productivity, managers can recognize failures during the manufacturing process, trace the cause of the issue and make adjustments before the problem spreads. Visibility to performance data is available whether you're in the plant or traveling far from the facility.

Share information throughout the supply chain. Measure performance.

Infor EPM incorporates strategic business intelligence, key performance indicators, financial reporting, operational reporting and management of work flow and alerts, integrating all of them into a set of tools that enable managers to set objectives and monitor performance in real time.

The type of critical information delivered, in a variety of formats and methods, goes far beyond the data found in spreadsheets and graphs. We provide instantly available "data cubes," encapsulating both strategic and tactical information that can be shared throughout the plant and the supply chain. Even when you aren't looking, our solutions are, and they will issue alerts via e-mail regarding important situations before they escalate into a crisis. More than just inventory levels and utilization figures, the Infor EPM solutions capture, analyze and continuously track essential measurements, like customer
